placing a passivating substance X into the monocrystalline silicon layer, during or after the fabrication of the semiconductor structure; and heat-treating the semiconductor structure with the passivating substance X for causing the passivating substance X in the monocrystalline silicon layer to diffuse both to the interface and to a surface of the monocrystalline silicon layer opposite to the interface.

Kind